Different people have different ambitions in life. Some wish to become doctors or engineers, whereas others wish to become teachers or journalists. One must have an ambition in life, because life without any ambition is dull and meaningless. My ambition in life is to join the IPS and become one of the best and successful police officers in the country. My idol is Kiran Bedi, who is the first woman IPS Officer of India. She was awarded the Magsaysay Award for her dedication and service to the nation. Like her, I will work hard to fulfill my dream and become an honest and hard-working police officer. I will also try to excel in sports and other co-curricular activities besides education. I will be regular and sincere in studies to achieve success in life.
